Walk Down the Memory Lane

history

Step into the Ramshehar Fort and let yourself be transported to an era gone by. The Ramshehar Fort has a series of structures that were mostly built in the Mughal style of architecture, with elements of Hindu and British architecture adding to the magnificence of the Fort. Located on a hillock at the foothills of the mighty Himalayas, the Fort offers a panoramic view of the Shivalik Hills, beyond the Sirsa River. Nalagarh was the capital of the Kingdom of Hindur, established by Raja Ajai Chand in 1100 A.D and it was ruled by the Chandela Rajputs. The Chandela kings were great patrons of art and architecture. Raja Ram Chander, another illustrious ruler of the same dynasty, was a great builder and constructed the Ramgarh Fort and the town of Ramshehar in 1540 A.D.

The Fort has now been renamed the Ramshehar Fort, by the present occupants. Raja Surendra Singh was the last ruler of Nalagarh and his son, Raja Vijayendra is the present ceremonial ruler of Nalagarh.
